ADAPTIVE LITERATURE
FOR SHARED READING.

Every Great Story Deserves to Be Experienced Together

Adaptive Literature for Shared Reading

For centuries, stories have brought people together—but they have rarely been accessible to everyone at the same time.

In Families

Different reading levels.
Different needs. Different pace.

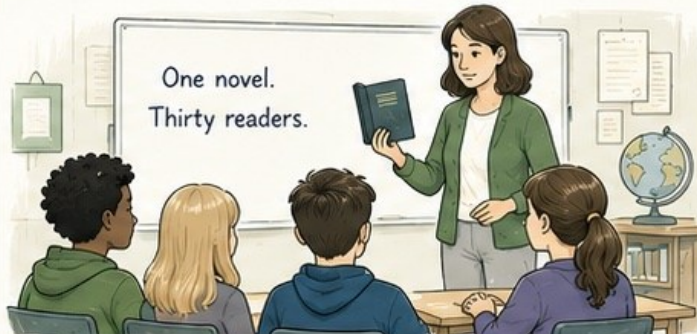

One child races ahead.
One struggles. One is just beginning.

In Schools

One text. Thirty readers.
Thirty different abilities.

One edition can't meet every reader where they are.

In Libraries & Communities

Limited formats.
Limited access. Limited inclusion.

Barriers keep great stories out of reach for too many.

StoryPath is a framework that makes shared reading possible without requiring every reader to read the same edition.

The Story Compiler

One canonical story. Many reading experiences.

The Story Compiler derives aligned reading experiences from a single canonical work—each at the right reading level and concept level for every reader. Always faithful. Always the same story.

“ Different editions.
Same Canon.
Shared understanding.

1 Establish the Story Canon

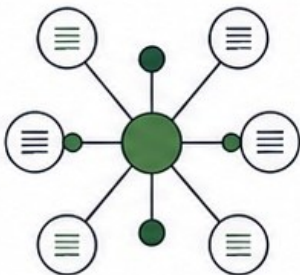

Original Work

Story Canon

We start with the original work. Through scholarly analysis, we derive the Story Canon—core themes, events, characters, settings, and author intent.

Reference Model: RL × CL

A unified model where computational scale meets human understanding.

Retrieval Literacy (RL)

The ability to find the right information from large, complex sources.

- Search and discovery skills
- Navigation and filtering
- Source evaluation
- Information access

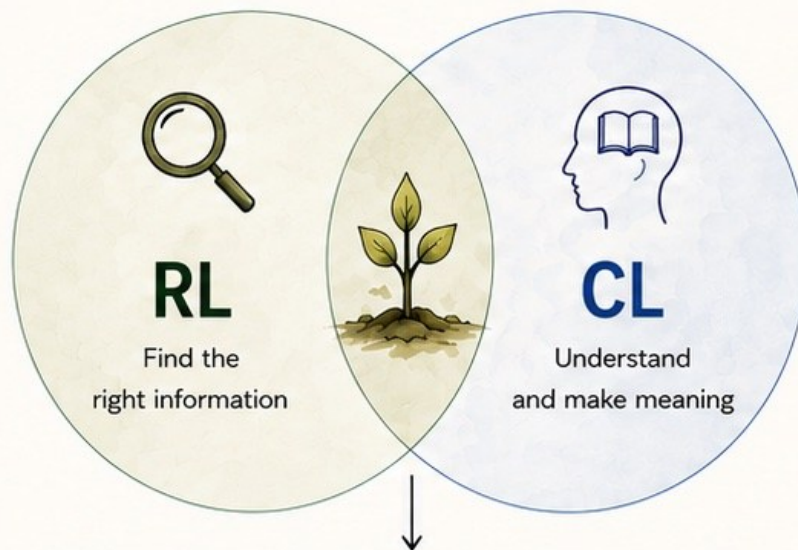

Comprehension Literacy (CL)

The ability to understand, make meaning, and apply what is read.

- Vocabulary and language mastery
- Conceptual understanding
- Critical thinking
- Meaning-making and application

The Intersection

Where stories adapt and understanding grows.

StoryPath Outcome

StoryPath lives at the intersection of Retrieval Literacy and Comprehension Literacy.

How RL and CL Work Together

RL gets readers to the content.

CL helps readers unlock its meaning.

Together, they create lasting learning.

Not Either / Or—Both / And

High RL, Low CL

Information is found but not fully understood. Surface-level engagement.

High CL, Low RL

Understanding is strong but discovery is limited. Potential remains hidden.

RL × CL = Access + Understanding = Growth

The North Star

Empower every reader to find the stories they need, understand them deeply, and grow from them.
